Neosonic deprecation

https://web.archive.org/web/*/http://www.upsb.info/wiki/index.php?title=Neosonic_Deprecation

(Wiki article not archived)

Apparently there were mistakes in the wiki article, Freeman fixed them in his translation. The idea seems to have started in SPSC, thus his post predates the UPSB post...

Freeman

Asunto: Eliminación del Neosonic
Publicado: 19 Jul 2009, 2:23 am

Registrado: 20 May 2008, 5:26 pm
Mensajes: 3977

El Naming Comitee ha publicado recientemente un pequeño artículo sobre la eliminación del Neosonic.

Se sugiere utilizar notación de arounds para los Neosonic, ya que se trata de un Fingeraround, y no un sonic. Además la notación como FA elimina ambiguedades. Ejemplos:

Neosonic Normal 12-T1 = Indexaround Reverse 12-T1

Neosonic Reverse T2-23 = Middlearound Normal T2-23

Neosonic Normal 34-TF = Ringaround Reverse 34-TF / RingMiddleIndexaround Reverse 34-TF / RingMiddlearound Reverse 34-TF / RingIndexaround Reverse 34-TF ...(dependiendo de como se haga).

Tema en UPSB

____
Bienvenidos a la luz. RIP Bonkura

https://upsb-v3.spin-archive.org/topic/21575

UPSB v3

Research Department Feedback / Neosonic deprecation article released

1. Freeman
   Date: Fri, Oct 16 2009 19:07:46

   Recovery:

   The Research Department has released an article on the wiki. You can view the article here: Neosonic deprecation. The article suggests no longer use the term Neosonic.

2. TRoc
   Date: Tue, Oct 20 2009 04:25:09

   I always thought that the term *Neo*Sonic came from the resemblence of the push of the trick as a *Neo*phyte would perform a Normal Sonic, not from the actual trick.

3. Zombo
   Date: Tue, Oct 20 2009 04:39:12

   thats right, the neosonic is a common mistake when beginners attempt to do the sonic.

   but deprecating neosonic because it can be confused with the sonic is still a valid reason.

4. TRoc
   Date: Tue, Oct 20 2009 04:46:07

   I see
   So in some cases, the term Neosonic wouldn't be specific enough to describe the notation.
   Like a Neosonic 34-T1.